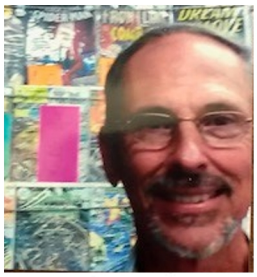
On Display: Mike Wileman's Comic Book Art Collection



ORIGINAL COMIC BOOK ART

The items on display are copies of original art (mostly unpublished work) collected over the last 50 years by Mike Wileman. He has attended or helped to coordinate comic book conventions all over the nation. During his comic book collecting career he has amassed an impressive collection going back to the Golden Age of comics (World War II era). He specialized in Marvel Comics and at one time had a copy of almost every comic book that company produced. That means that he has owned tens of thousands of comic books.

The collection here is meant to emphasize the wide variety of styles covered under the umbrella of "comic book art". The genre is not limited to only super-heroes. Each drawing has its own story. It could be the actual character depicted, the artist's connection to that character, or the original intent for the piece. The display also covers material from the 1940's to 2001. There are well-known characters (Superman and Batman) and lesser knowns (Madman and Enemy Ace). One particular item is only described as a "jam" style piece. At a convention in 1995 all the guests were asked to do a small sketch on the same piece of paper.

Please visit our Wamego branch to view Mikes's Comic Book Art display through February 16th
